OTAKI LIVE MUSIC CLUB EVERYONE WELCOME

Strolling minstrel, Ivan Johnston, has been a member of the Otaki Live Music Club for many years.

Otaka Live Music Club member Charlie.

Cavan Haines is a familiar face on stage as he is involved with amateur theatre.

Some come to perform on stage but many come just to enjoy the entertainment. "New faces are always welcome," Barbara said. "You don't have to be a member."

Concerts are held at the Otaki Senior Citizens Hall, 23 Rangatira Street Otaki with the December 6 and February 7 concerts from 7pm until 9pm. Winter hours of 2pm until 5pm kick in on the first Sunday in March.

Single membership is $10 a year, couples $15, which gives admission to concerts for $3 while non members pay $4.

Otaki Live Music Club welcomes a variety of performers, not all musical.

"We are not limited to singing or playing instruments," said Club President Barbara Mullens. "We are happy for people to recite poetry, dance, perform magic tricks."

It is well over two decades since a group of enthusiasts came together to share their talents and love of music. Little has changed as on the first Sunday of each month, except January, an open door Black Board concert continues to attract people from all walks of life with a variety of talents.

Barbara Mullen, Club president, and husband Pat perform a duet.

Power Line Crossings on this Waterway

Ensure you know the height of your vessel

BOATING SAFETY

Sailing or moving boats near powerlines can be dangerous as many yachts exceed the standard safe clearance height of 4 metres. The main risk when boating near powerlines is the mast contacting overhead wires, potentially causing injury or death for the crew or others near the boat.

Launching or retrieving boats from the water using a trailer is also hazardous as many people forget to check for overhead powerlines near water. There are often powerlines in car parks or near boat-ramps at marinas, and these should be observed by sailors before entering or leaving the water. Motorboats with large aerials or radar equipment should also avoid travelling near powerlines.
