Save Our River Trust

The effects of floods in 1942 devastated the life of the Manawatu River, stopping recreation access and threatening wildlife. Thanks to the work of the Save Our River Trust (SORT) and its supporters, the river is on its way to being restored to its former glory. Children are again seen with their fishing rods down by the river and this gives great joy to the Trust.

Behind the scenes and along the banks of the mighty Manawatu River is a group of passionate locals working to restore one of the town's greatest assets.

Pathways and cycle ways are being created by the Trust and its supporters to give locals and visitors better access to the river.

Save Our River Trust activity is supported by many locals including Iwi, businesses and local councils. If you would like to share in the growth of Foxton's future you are invited to make a donation or get active and become a member of SORT.
